From Fr. Claude

Peace be with you beloved,

Next year, we shall celebrate the Eucharistic Congress. Some may wonder about the need for a congress. Perhaps because we receive the Eucharist every Sunday if not every day, whenever we participate at Mass. We may be too familiar with Eucharist. In spite of this familiarity, the Eucharist remains a mystery to all of us. In this context, the Eucharistic Congress, without claiming to answer all questions on the subject, will give us the opportunity to deepen our knowledge about the Eucharist and to rediscover the power of that which is the "Source and Summit" (CCC 1324) of the Christian life; that without which, Pope Benedict XVI (Corpus Christi 2011) said "the Church does not exist."

My letter this week will attempt an understanding of this mystery, also known "as Communion". We certainly know, the term "Communion" is another name given to the Eucharist which highlights in fact its effect rather than its nature. The Eucharist, indeed, brings us into "Communion" in other word "love-union" (The Luke E. Hart Series, 4) we become one with God when we receive him (cf. St Augustine). Jesus established this love-union more than two thousand years ago in both a sacramental way and on the cross; today we still enjoy it whenever the Eucharist is celebrated. Jesus, broken and given to us in the Eucharist, reconciles humanity, bringing about communion and oneness of all in himself (cf. Col 1:20). Consequently "We, though many, make up one body in Christ, and individually we are all parts of one another" (Rom 12:5). Consequently, disunity among Christians is a counter witness to the love of God for all; and disunity within humanity is a rejection of God's plan for the world.

On the first day of the Totus Tuus program (July 9, 2023), the team of the Missionaries decided to sing happy birthday to honor one of the participants. After the traditional happy birthday song, there followed a song asking him to skip around the room. As he stood up to make the round, three other participants also stood up and made the round with him. For me, it was beautiful seeing this. This action, though little and maybe unnoticed, for me, speaks volume of who the Eucharist invites us to be: sisters and brothers to each other sharing in one another's joy and sorrow. Moreover, the poster made for Totus Tuus summarizes it all. It reads: "You are not alone. You are not your own. We are made for communion with God and with one another". Indeed, we are made for one another, in the image of God who is relational. This inter-connectivity is reinforced by and in the Eucharist we celebrate and receive daily. In Jesus- Eucharist, our differences are harnessed and brought into communion for the glory of God like the parts of the body which though many and different work for the same goal (1Cor 12:12-26). This communion is not an option, it is our very nature of beings, created in the image and likeness of God who is Trinity. A Christian, a community of Christians, who therefore work and promote this communion, live the full Law and the Prophets (cf. Mt 22:36-40)

Unfortunately, there are many challenges against this communion desired by God. We have here an example in the French philosopher Rene Descartes' theory of "I think therefore I am". He then, and many today, reduce the whole existence of the human person to one's capacity of thinking, of deciding by oneself, independently of others. They seem to say to us that one's strive to happiness, greatness, wealth or to other desires begins with oneself and ends in oneself. In this strive, when another is perceived as a threat, he/she must be pushed out. Thus, we experience discrimination, conflicts, and other ill-actions. The action of the participants of the Totus Tuus earlier mentioned taught me, and teaches us, that there is something different which is important and greater: we are made for each other even though we are unique and different. We are called to share each other's joy and pain and work together for the fulfillment of one and all. This, Benedict XVI (2011) reminds us especially in connection with the Eucharist when he said: "The Eucharist is a kind of 'antidote' which operates in the minds and hearts of believers and is continually sowing in them the logic of communion, of service and of sharing".

Coming to the same and one altar - Christ Jesus, receiving the same and one body and blood - Christ Jesus, we do not only become one with Him- Christ Jesus and with other members of the body of Christ, but we also pledge to witness this communion and work to strengthen it (cf. Mt 5:9).

Peace.

The conflicts of the early Christians in Corinth are in many ways similar to our struggles today as Christians. With Divisions, immorality, persecution, and other trials of the faithful, the message of St. Paul to the Corinthians is a much-needed message for our own times This First Corinthians bible study explores the key elements that the apostle Paul introduced to a new and growing Church. St. Paul taught the Corinthians about the nature of grace and the Church as the Body of Christ. In addition, he introduced the Corinthian Christians to the most powerful gift of all, the Eucharist, which along with Christian virtue leads to a life of joy.

Please contact the office if you would like to participate in the study and order a workbook. 309-944-5393
