A Note From the Pastor

Dear St. Malachy Parishioners,

He is Risen. Alleluia! “After this He appeared in another form to two of them walking along on their way to the country. They returned and told the others; but they did not believe them either” (Mark 16:12-13). Now that we have come to the Second Sunday of Easter, also known as Divine Mercy Sunday, our focus turns to that stream of mercy pouring forth from His Heart. While Saint Faustina saw this stream in the form of rays of light, this is simply the glorified form of the stream of blood and water that poured forth when His Heart was pierced on the cross. Thus, as promised, we return to conclude the reflection on the cup that Jesus drank on the cross and Psalm 42 (the inspiration of our upcoming stained glass windows). As we have already considered, Jesus drank for us the cup of suffering on the cross. When He asked two of His disciples if they could drink “the cup that I drink,” their enthusiastic response, “We can,” represents a very different manifestation of that thirst in the heart that we find in Psalm 42: “As the deer longs for the running waters, so my soul longs for You, O God.” In the depths of our hearts, we long to go to the cross with Christ, for it is there that our salvation is found.

Our Lord declared His readiness to drink the cup for us, when He cried out “I thirst” (John 19:28) and there is a profound connection between these words and what happens next: “There was a vessel filled with common wine. So they put a sponge soaked in wine on a sprig of hyssop and put it up to his mouth. When Jesus had taken the wine, he said, “It is finished.” And bowing his head, he handed over the spirit... when they came to Jesus and saw that he was already dead, they did not break his legs, but one soldier thrust his lance into his side, and immediately blood and water flowed out.” Once He “drinks the cup” and breathes His last, a stream flows from Him, as if to satisfy our thirst. As you may recall from an earlier reflection back in October, this is reminiscent of earlier in the Gospel of John (chapter 4), when His encounter with the woman at the well began with His thirst and led to the living waters which He would give to satisfy her thirst. This is a sign that, not only does He drink the cup of suffering, He Himself becomes the cup of salvation poured out for us. Elsewhere in the Psalms, we find “How can I repay the LORD for all the great good done for me? I will raise the cup of salvation and call on the name of the LORD” (Psalm 116).

What does this say for us and our calling to drink the cup with the Lord? It means that, in drinking the cup, we too are to be poured out for others. Our thirst for the Lord, which leads us to that blessed font, which is the Holy Eucharist, is not only a longing for the Lord to satisfy our own desires. It is a longing to be united with Him. We are to be united with Him in drinking the cup and so becoming the cup that is offered for others. We are to be poured out with Him. Thus, when we consider the imagery of the deer drinking from the stream, we are invited to see ourselves, not only in the deer, but also in the stream itself, for the Lord wants to unite our own sacrifices to His in the Holy Eucharist.

On this Divine Mercy Sunday, in which we remember that stream of mercy pouring forth from His Heart, may we not only go to Him to satisfy our own thirst for love and mercy. May we also seek to be vessels of Mercy poured out for others. This way, they may meet the Risen Christ in us and discover His Merciful love for themselves. Happy Easter!

STAINED GLASS WINDOW SURVEY: Since this reflection series began, we have had a survey available in the narthex and shared online, for anyone with thoughts or questions about the stained glass windows. As this reflection on the content of those windows concludes, we invite anyone who has taken the survey to please return them so that we can begin to review the results.

In Christ through Mary,
